Little Miss Sunshine followed by a facilitated discussion

“Little Miss Sunshine” (2006), directed by Jonathan Dayton and Valerie Ferris, original screenplay by Michael Arndt.

On the surface, it’s yet another dysfunctional-family road movie, but it’s ultimately about finding one’s way home. Its message emerges from hysterically funny yet excruciating family encounters where the thing that everybody wants to ignore becomes inescapable — and just when you think it can’t get any worse, it does!

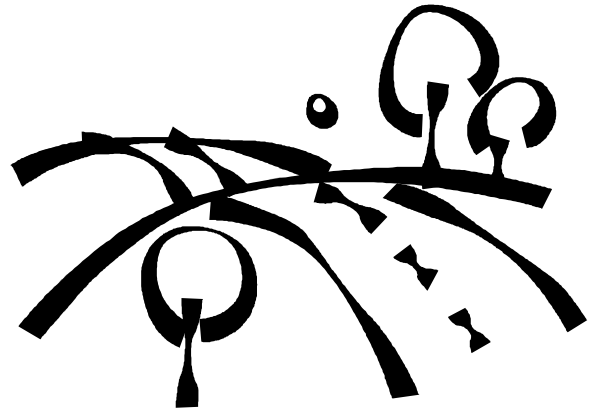

There are myriad Jungian ideas emerging from this story, notably the Shadow, the Archetypal Feminine, and the power of paradox and conflict, whether outer or inner, to transform.

“It looks at the all-American obsession with winning and chortles darkly.”

— Ty Burr, Boston Globe

“... comes closer to the truth about the way people really live — on the edge of fantasy-driven desperation — than our sanctimonies permit us to think.”

— Richard Schickel, TIME Magazine
